Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, October 30, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

At this point in your journey, you need to specify your objective well. Nothing is imposed. You all advance at your own pace and only hearts with a great love of the Absolute aspire to higher discoveries.

We understand and support their efforts to attain the goal they have set for themselves. We know the pitfalls; the difficulty of the path must be present within the aspirants' minds. There is no wave of the magic wand. Our method is sure, and your Master is capable of taking you to the highest level, but it has to be of your own free will.

You must fully participate in this ascent. You know that the summit is within you. All the elements are in place to bring you to this victory over yourselves.

We keep on repeating ourselves. Humans need these incessant returns to the truths that concern them the most. These multiple repetitions help build victories. They are not won without your knowing – otherwise, where would the total happiness of success lie?
