Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, November 13, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Yes, my child, there is a hierarchy with great plans to save the world. This objective is their concern and their priority for this new century.

We are all working towards the building of a new order where real values should find their place. That is why we insist so much on asking you all to work on your own transformation.

Light begins to dawn on the horizon, but the task is hard. All the forces of good must unite to prepare for the golden age that will be established in centuries to come.

You all are not isolated and without recourse. By working under our guidance, you join in a liberating and redeeming movement.

You have every reason to rejoice. You will not see, while on this Earth, the outcome of this great plan, but you are contributing to its achievement.

You can inform your closest circle about this vision and the message you received. Why wouldn't this personage come to you? He is not the first and will not be the last. You were able to acquire a special position to serve as our spokesperson. Your mission is being accomplished as planned, that's all.
