Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, November 16, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

You see that, from the smallest to the largest, difficulties are bound to arise along the way. Whatever your social standing and level of spiritual evolution, whether you have a mission to fulfil or not, ordeals are the lot of human beings. Sooner or later, everyone is subject to this rule. So will it be until the end of time on this planet Earth.

We have sufficiently expressed ourselves on the subject since the beginning of our contacts.

It is an initiatory journey that each of you must undertake, with strong points that are particularly difficult to experience. These are crucial moments that refine your personality, in every sense of the word. Most often, you come out from them greater, and you set off again for other battles. We mark out your journey so that strength is given to you in a timely manner, to face every eventuality.

The sun continues to shine, despite all that may happen in your life. This sun that lights your way from within, the one that illuminates your soul and glorifies it – never lose sight of it. Think that in the darkest moments of your existence, we are there, close to you all, even though you don't see us. I will answer my son later.
