Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, November 20, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

The effect produced by these writings is proportional to the interest shown in reading them.

Everyone gives of themselves what is possible. We cannot override what is requested and force the opening of the heart.

This collection of messages cannot leave anyone indifferent. Whatever reactions they provoke, they leave their mark on the reader.

We repeat ourselves deliberately. It is the best way to capture attention and ensure that our words are truly heard. Human beings are made like that. Sometimes you have to hit hard so that a truth can reach the deepest part within.

All large esoteric movements have understood this. Understanding develops in successive phases before surfacing in the objective consciousness. People then embrace this truth that seems obvious to them.

We hope that these messages lead the readers to a better understanding, permitting them to advance serenely, stripped of that which is useless.

Our only aim is to make their work easier. They hold the keys to the secret place where self-knowledge is built, and which enables them to work towards full success.
