Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, November 27, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

You are just a 'nothing' placed on my heart, so you say; that estimation shows your way of being and the surrender that characterizes you.

The definition is simple and may appear simplistic to some minds, but this simplicity of heart must be reached, precisely.

It is not necessarily innate, unlike your case. It is the result of a long spiritual progress punctuated with many accepted ordeals, all having contributed to leading you to this state.

The intelligence of the heart is of primary importance. It is the fruit of a long ripening that brings the soul to a state of permanent and subtle love. What you live internally is a precious good. In order to not disturb this harmony, you wish only to drink in a teaching that nourishes you every day. You have understood its profound meaning.

It corresponds exactly to you all. It tallies with your practice and the level you all want to reach. We adapt it to your personalities; your vibrations result from the work that is carried out on you elsewhere.

It's good for all of you to understand that and to hold to what it can bring you. It's good for you to admit that we want to touch your hearts, to bring them to a greater wisdom.

M is right: these messages are a 'tailor-made' teaching adapted to what you all are and what you would like to become.

We don't ask you all to read us exclusively, but you who have the good luck to access them, you should truly immerse yourselves in them before going to hear other voices, however right they may be.
