Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, December 1, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

Infinite love leads the greatest beings to extreme reactions. Their awareness of perfection has reached such a level that it's not easy to manage. There's neither exaggeration nor weakness here; the cause lies in the need to be in perfect harmony with the Divine Creator.

The human being has a long way to go before attaining this very high degree of perfection. It's not easy to reach and requires great sacrifice.

All these concepts are beyond you all; you take pleasure in your behaviours, which you find acceptable.

This is why we insist so much on making you open your eyes to the many failings that characterize the human being and that must be left behind.

We are not exaggerating anything: sooner or later you will all manage to become aware of your shortcomings, and you will be face to face with a reality that will overwhelm you. You will then have to assess the whole journey and re-examine your shortcomings from A to Z; this is inescapable.

Either you continue to stagnate or you tackle the problem.

Laxity is more comfortable, but know that the moment will come, in your evolutionary cycle, when you will all have to take the necessary measures.
