Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, December 15, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

It is in the face of life's difficulties and trials that a person's true nature reveals itself. Everything, including errors of judgement, is initiatory. Don't, any of you, be hard on certain behaviours of your brothers and sisters involved in various tasks within the Mission. Most of the time, they act in good faith and realize, a bit late, their errors, if by chance they want to acknowledge them.

The superhuman is not easy to find. Very fervent and highly spiritual beings, devoted to their Master, are entrusted with responsibilities which, at the material and human levels, are beyond them. Even if such circumstances are not favourable to the group where they occur, they should make each member reflect on this aspect of community life.

It is easy to not get involved and to judge. Rather try, all of you, to offer your services and give your opinion in certain situations. The lack of dialogue doesn't make things any easier. One has to be wary of power and the lure it holds for those who aspire to it.

The school of life is an obligatory passage for all. Each person's most striking flaws must be fully revealed before being neutralized as much as possible.
