Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, December 24, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

I've told you quite often to change turns of phrases when necessary. We do not dictate these messages to you word for word. You sometimes take them down under difficult conditions, so without changing the meaning, rectify them if necessary.

The French language isn't easy. When the Earth becomes a planet where harmony and peace reign, a universal language will be given to humans.

Human beings and all forms of life living here below will be able to communicate by means of a vibratory code.

Currently, some isolated peoples who are protected from the damaging effects of your civilization communicate in this way.

Thought transmission is practised in certain spiritual high places. These remarks will leave more than one reader perplexed, but they are real.

The true capabilities of human beings go unused. The enormous potential of their brain is not exploited as it should be. Since the caveman, they have come only a limited way.

As the vibratory rate of the Earth rises, humans' resources will develop and the current criteria of knowledge will be surpassed. Some of your values will no longer be valid, they will be seen as outdated and puerile. There is still a long way to go before reaching that stage; you will not know this new era.

We are merely raising the veil to give you all a glimpse of what life will be on the Earth for future civilizations.
