Whispers from The Brighter World

Monday, December 25, 2000 – 8:00 a.m.

When your civilization has outgrown this extreme materialism, it will return to true values, where spirituality will have the place it deserves. Only this dimension will be able to give society solid foundations again. Many human beings are lost, they wander aimlessly, in despair. For some of them, this results in great distress that drives them to commit irreparable harm. At this beginning of a new century, the world is at a pivotal point. In which direction will it swing? The coming decades will show.

We remain confident as this year draws to a close; humans cannot continue to wander in the darkness indefinitely.

Many will find the spiritual path that suits them. Ours is within the reach of a large number of people. It is offered to them in its simplicity and without risks of any kind of misunderstanding. These times are deceptive in many respects, even in this domain; certain people fall prey to movements focused more on material profit than spiritual benefit.

One must know how to tell the difference. Our aspirants have made no mistake, they benefit from a simple teaching and a practice that is very clear in its workings. It is good to know this and thus continue on one's way in complete peace of mind.
