Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, December 27, 2000 – 10:00 a.m.

One day, you will understand why this kind of life is imposed on you. Is your inner life no longer rich enough to bear this? We doubt it. Is your heart no longer cradled by the melodious waves of love? It seems not. We see perfectly what you are enduring and the courage it takes you, particularly on certain days, to continue doing this work. You consider it a grace – it is a grace and it's our choice. This is for several reasons, including the sincerity of your love, offered without expecting anything in return.

Things have to be placed in context, even if you do not like being put in the limelight. The readers have to come to terms with it.

We are pursuing this track because it seems to us that these messages still generate interest for your entourage and, in addition, this daily practice is necessary to keep you in the best condition to receive.

We consider that even if an individual doesn't read the totality of these writings, there is a strong chance they will capture the essential points.

Those of you who benefit from all we have to say receive a special teaching, whose scope you are not in a position to assess.

Babuji