Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, January 14, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Don't be afraid of making my son sad, his health is better. In a few days, you can send him that which you have kept aside. Great periods of turbulence are followed now and again by repose and peace. Human beings and nature alike are subject to these diverse movements.

They permit a balance. All that constitutes life on this Earth must be able to manifest. Humans must go through all possible states so as to use all their resources. Life is one, it is movement and renewal. Divine manifestations are incessantly in action. The work is constantly renewed and refined, according to established rules – destruction and elimination being part of this eternal recommencement. This planet has its own characteristics; nothing and no one escapes its laws.

A Master who incarnates, even the greatest, goes through inevitable torments. He must assert himself against all odds. Nothing is easy for him, contrary to what his disciples think.

This succession of difficulties only serves to highlight his greatness and situate it in time. One remembers his fights and his sufferings even more than all the rest, which makes less of an impression on those close to him. Humans are made like this. Bless you for rendering this service in spite of your difficulties.
