Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, January 17, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

The Earth turns and will keep on turning for a long time. Humans who populate it will continue their round until their own cycle of incarnations on this planet has come to an end.

The history of this world is very rich and with such a diversity that you would all remain astounded if you knew about it. You are aware of relatively recent facts.

What are three or four thousand years? Two thousand years are like a day; twelve thousand, a sequence of renewal, hardly more, on the scale of time. Incredibly rich civilizations that existed would stagger ethnologists and researchers in all fields as their knowledge remains limited to their capabilities of understanding. Liquid and solid spaces have moved very often in ways unimaginable for twenty-first century humans.

They would remain staggered, if they could go back twenty thousand years.

That would serve no valid purpose as far as they are concerned. Their life programme is here; they must face up to things now. It is good for them to reflect on what life was in ancient times, but this reflection is valid only if it leads to a raised awareness of their smallness and, by contrast, of the power of the laws that govern the universe and each of the innumerable existing planets.

The power of the Creator is boundless. That must incite human beings to the greatest humility and to devotion, this being the ultimate goal of their Earthly journey.
