Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, January 18, 2001 – 9:30 p.m.

To you, my dear son; you see, there is also good news. All of us here are delighted with the outcome of this affair. Bless you for bringing these transactions to a successful conclusion, which will result in a very favourable outcome for the Mission.

Venerated Lalaji, my divine Master, is happy. You see, my son, business is progressing according to our projects and nothing can stop them.

You still have great things to accomplish. Your wisdom is precious to us, and we like to see you active and enthusiastic in this type of business in which you excel.

I told our scribe about your letter, which reassures her of the doubts she regularly has about what she is writing down under our dictation.

Be confident in the Mission's destiny; it is still preparing for its take-off. You have the rudder well in hand and everything is going according to our wishes.

Be bold, we support you in your action.

Rediscover the joy of serving us, that's what we expect from you.

Receive the blessings of all the Hierarchy, who are with you.
