Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, January 21, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Each life, in broad outline, is programmed in advance; nothing is left to chance as you call it, divine laws are too rigorous for that.

Love is the most important point; it is the strongest vibration and able to illuminate a life. It alone can give the soul its nourishment. It opens the most closed doors and transforms all that it touches.

We cannot stop talking about love. It is life; it gives its most beautiful colours to faith, to divine adoration, whatever form humans may give it. When they have gone a sufficient distance in that direction, true mystics are beyond religious contingencies. They cultivate within themselves this flower so rare, so sublime, that they are intoxicated by its scent and nothing else matters to them. Even if, until the end of their lives, they give their devotion an outwardly dogmatic form, they have managed to find within themselves the door to heaven, as humans call it.

The purity and fervour of their love places them directly on the luminous axis, which leads to the Ultimate.
