Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, January 24, 2001 – 10:30 a.m.

Yes, give us a little more time, circumstances permit it today.
You cannot leave this blissful state, so we will maintain our contact.
Love, at this level, transports the soul and makes it soar to heights difficult to reach outside that state. Be blessed and thanked, my dear daughter, for your perseverance in the effort despite what it costs you, and for your constancy in the love you bear us. It embellishes the most arid path – that love illuminates the horizon and magnifies everything.

Your loving heart is a precious jewel. May all that is said today, and that you agree to write because you are in a state of grace, touch pure hearts and move them. They will feel the joy that these moments of intense happiness can provide, due to the soul communion between Master and disciple.

We are overusing your faculties today. May you keep in you, throughout this day, the imprint of this happiness.

Convey our blessings to the two sincere hearts that work for us and let them share your joy.

Babuji