Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, January 27, 2001 – 9:30 a.m.

Accept the monotony of the days. If your body must be restricted to this confinement, think that one day these writings will fly from continent to continent for the good of many beings eager to read them.

See only this aspect of things and the joy you feel when serving us. These contacts must be preserved; they cannot occur anytime and anywhere. Your physical and channelling state weakens you; we must protect you from certain degrading vibrations, which would disturb the transmission channel. On that we refer to the subtle side of the operation, which must be taken into account.

See how the current high technology is sensitive and can easily be upset. Good, antiquated equipment would require less fine-tuning and monitoring.

The purpose of this comparison is to make you understand that the subtlety of our communication system is equally subject to some very precise rules regarding your condition and environment.

There are disadvantages associated with a particular kind of service. For a long time now, we've noted that you understand and accept, in your heart of hearts, all the implications of our very special contract. You abide by it with love, surrender and joy. Be blessed, my daughter.
