Whispers from The Brighter World

Sunday, January 28, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

My dear daughter, you belong to the privileged ones who know for certain what happens after one leaves the physical body. Do you realize how lucky you are? So many human beings are in the darkness of ignorance and see no way out of it. Imagine what their life can be like: often without purpose and, above all, with no prospects for the future. In Christian discourse, where are hell and purgatory in such a case?

Isn't a life without belief, faith and hope distressing? These poor souls wander in sorrow, and what they live in their mind and body makes them sometimes turn to what you call artificial paradises. Is there anything sadder than moving forward without even suspecting that light is at the end of the tunnel and death is a beginning!

Knowing the reason for the difficulties this life on Earth presents reduces the burden thereof. When most of the ordeals have been undergone, reasoning leads one to take stock and draw conclusions about what human beings must undergo to advance in their evolution. It is not easy, even for one who has an unwavering faith, to resign oneself and always accept cheerfully all that destiny holds, let alone when this faith is non-existent.
