Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, February 1, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

Our laws cannot be easily understood by human beings. We don't deal with Earthly matters in your way.

Once again, my daughter, don't let doubt overcome you. Your channelling ability is not at issue in this matter. You all must adapt to our comments and formulas, the deeper meaning of which you cannot understand. Don't, any of you, rely on comments that can mislead you. They are meant to be decoded by my son; therefore, don't let yourselves get emotionally involved in the ups and downs of Mission business. They are sorted out according to the rhythm of life, taking into account the perpetual human game – ever changing and unreliable.

We must consider all possibilities and let events unfold, while trying to influence them favourably.

There are miracles, but there is no permanent miracle.

Life on Earth has its own rules, which no one can escape. There is no shortage of such vagaries in the history of the Mission.

Sooner or later this ashram will see the light of day; it's in the nature of things.
