Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, February 8, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Your gifts are not at issue in the matter that is tormenting my son; we can neither do nor say anything more for the moment.

Remember what you are told today: your competence suits us perfectly.

Relax, keep your perceptions intact by letting yourself be carried away by the transmission. This transmission is the major asset of Sahaj Marg. This so simple means of connecting to the Source, ignored for such a long time and given back to the world by the grace of my Divine Master, is at the disposal of the souls in need.

This transmission is a true blessing for the world; it can transform hearts avid for the Absolute and touch souls awaiting grace.

Our way is making progress slowly; nothing can be forced. It is developing according to divine laws, in spite of the obstruction that certain recrudescent forces may cause, for a limited time.

All of you, cultivate in your hearts this incandescent flower that you don't even suspect the importance of in your lives. It thoroughly transforms you all and regenerates in the most subtle part of your beings. Be deeply receptive and let yourselves be conquered to become conquerors in your turn.
