Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, February 16, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

From life to life, bonds are created that bring certain beings together, sometimes without their understanding the intensity of the relationship. This principle of reincarnation is a basic concept that has been concealed by certain religions that care little about truth. This wheel that turns tirelessly brings back to Earth beings who must continue on a path until they are released from this constraint. An incarnation can take place for the noble goal of helping humankind in its difficult quest. These missioned beings have to relive all that their brothers and sisters must endure. Noble souls constantly aspire to serve; it is their main characteristic.

Sooner or later people of the Earth will have to free themselves from this heavy debt that holds them back in their evolution.

The planet continues its evolution within the established rules. Its complete mutation takes place slowly, though the pace accelerates year by year, imperceptibly. It is true that a new race is being born, one that will be more harmonized vibrationally with the planetary context.

It takes centuries for the positive aspects of this slow rotational movement to be perceptible. By following our path, you are in this upward movement that characterizes the beginning of the century.
