Whispers from The Brighter World

Wednesday, February 28, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

You must be vigilant and not let yourself be interfered with in the moments that precede our contacts.

You need peace, and your way of life is suited to the work you do for us. There is a price for everything. To be in our service as you are, implies some sacrifices.

This way of living, isolated from the external world, fosters our contacts and your spiritual life, the two being linked for you and of paramount importance.

This is the choice you have made. Service is your main preoccupation, it meets your dearest wish. So we don't hold you in slavery; circumstances are such that these conditions favour your mission.

After a long journey, you have reached this point of ease and your perceptions are still changing. You are in osmosis with us and soon we will begin another work. You are completely surrendered and this state of mind facilitates our purposes. Our love carries you, it sanctifies you and fosters the perfect union of our hearts. You are like a child who lets herself be taken by the hand and guided on a secure path, in complete trust. There lies the key to success.

Be blessed, my daughter, and think on all we have just said.
