Saturday, March 3, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

Each life has its own riches, which are not always to the liking of the beneficiaries.

It is necessary to have reached a certain level of wisdom to be able to put things in perspective and regard ordeals as blessings.

Once this point of surrender and renunciation is reached, a being's life becomes exemplary.

Few people actually come to this blessed state, which requires a particular nobility of soul. They exist, however – they are among you all, and they often pass unnoticed in the eyes of their brothers and sisters who are preoccupied with a thousand other things. Their priorities lie elsewhere and this speech may seem irrational to them.

The path of each one is nuanced and specific to their evolution. Every being is unique, both within themselves and in their way of comprehending life. This long path holds surprises for them and, if they manage to take the opportunities offered to them in the best way, they can succeed beyond their hopes. Everything is a matter of choice. Do they know how to listen to their own inner voice? Do they take account of the warnings or encouragements they receive? That is the question.

God is great. Sooner or later, they will open their eyes and want the best of themselves to be realized, the strength and beauty that dwells within them.

Babuji