Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, March 6, 2001 – 10:00 a.m.

My dear child, let us stay with what is achievable. The current system, apart from a few delays due to congestion of the lines, is going quite well. We must appreciate the ease we have arrived at. The current team is performing well.

If we consider the current possibilities of information technology, why couldn't we too have our own means of communication?

In centuries to come, scepticism on this topic will no longer prevail as this means will be widely used on the Earth. Humankind will have made a great leap in knowledge and perception of the waves surrounding this planet.

It will be less populated than it is now.

Another race of individuals will live in these places – beings who are more advanced and receptive to the reality of the 'beyond.'

This planet will serve as a relay station in sidereal and planetary spaces. An advanced technology that is non-destructive for humankind will facilitate this service. Telepathy will be commonly used, as well as the many resources of the brain, and that is for the good of everyone.

This is reassuring and raises hope for the descendants of the people of today who are advancing in this world of darkness and despair.
