Thursday, March 1, 2001 – 11:00 a.m.

You understood from my last letter, I'm making progress in this human relationship. For us, unity must be achieved between these two kinds of contact. Then we'll approach a new, more constructive stage, desired by the Beloved. It does take time, in certain cases, to be receptive.

I'm in a good position to understand you when it comes to doubt.

If, in general, it is a natural protective barrier, it can be troublesome in certain circumstances that escape reasoned understanding. We've come a long way in recent months, and we can hope to reach a complete understanding before long.

Yes, I'm really here – don't doubt please, don't complicate things.

I understand that it's not easy for you to manage, and I'm not making things any easier for you.

As he said, our Beloved observes us as two rare specimens in our reactions! The end result will be all the more pleasing to him.

What is he trying to get at? Only he knows, and that's what counts. Let's wait and see what happens next, in the love we bear for him. He'll know for certain how to ensure that his plans come to fruition. He always astonished me when I was close to him, and this new kind of relationship continues to surprise me.

Let us be united in his love.

S.E.