Whispers from The Brighter World

Friday, April 13, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

When a situation cannot be changed, it must be accepted philosophically. These people who talk nonsense are badly informed and, above all, are in bad faith. Don't be sad, my daughter, we know how much the Mission is close to your heart, but in the present case, what more can we do? Stupidity leads to the worst excesses, of which Sahaj Marg is currently bearing the brunt. This country is disconcerting, it is spiritually immature and that cannot be forced. Nothing stops you all from continuing your personal work. Advancing in love and faith in what you are all doing cannot be taken away from you. Your progress will not be affected, for all that.

Be careful, all of you, of judging, of attacking one or another of your brothers and sisters by accusing them of having caused this national state of mind. The roots of the evil lie mainly outside of the Mission. The evil is profound, it is a work of undermining that has its source in an ideology of which none of you even suspects the power. This evil must manifest itself in all its force to be overcome. Sad is this society where it is always necessary for the extreme to occur in order to eradicate evil.

Pray, all of you, for these unscrupulous beings who destroy what does not resemble them in order to achieve their goals.
