Whispers from The Brighter World

Saturday, November 13, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

You can quote that definition of chance we gave you a long time ago. It is and will always be relevant as long as the Earthly world exists: 'Chance does not exist, it is an opportunity given to human beings for their destiny to be fulfilled.'

Absorb this definition, all of you; observe anything unusual happening in your life and think of what it can mean. There are signs that should be seen and not ignored.

Life shakes you up sometimes. It makes you all go in directions opposite to those you are following, and that unsettles you a little, but it is your destiny that is being achieved and you cannot escape it.

Be always surrendered to divine Providence, let our work be accomplished; we always act only for your good, even if some upheavals are painful to overcome. Remain confident, no matter what happens; what is not to your liking is sometimes necessary to make you move in the right direction or make the right decision. We ensure that the best happens for you all, and in spite of disconcerting appearances, you must remain confident.
