Beloved Master
Revered Babuji Maharaj

Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, November 16, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

That my son appreciates receiving our messages in no way detracts from his greatness as a spiritual Master. He is incarnate and experiences human feelings just like all of you. He is very tired and sad to be separated from his Master, unhappy to have lost his life partner, and weary of all the difficulties inherent in an incarnation and of the responsibilities that fall to him in fulfilling his Earthly mission.

He too is longing to come and rest on the celestial fields, close to us, but he must go to the end, without weakening, supported by our love for him.

Whatever the role you have to play, that is how it is for each of you.

Do not weaken, even in difficult times; know that all of you have to go through unpleasant periods, it is in the order of things. You possess a great treasure, faith, therefore you possess what is most important.

Direct your eyes towards 'Him', who came to help and guide you towards what you all aspire for – unique and total union with the Creator of all things.

Babuji