Whispers from The Brighter World

Thursday, November 18, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Don't lose heart, this treatment will help you. The human body is a wonderful tool, but it can also give much suffering. Your evolution had to take that painful path. We are trying to alleviate it through the various methods of care from which you benefit. Telling you that we, the Masters you venerate, underwent that sad fate while incarnate cannot console you. We understand; this new blow is painful to bear.

My dear daughter, we know we can ask that of you. Be with your Master in thought. At the cost of a great tiredness, he will set off once again to go towards the abhyasis – our faithful brothers and sisters who are also struggling, one way or another, to cope with their lives. This world is not an idyllic place where everyone lives in joy and love.

Even if that is also part of the programme, one must cope with all the bad aspects of it.

What else can be said – that this life is not eternal here below and that you all should not despair. Even when faith is not enough to really help you, try not to lose sight of the ultimate goal.
