Tuesday, November 23, 1999 – 10:00 a.m.

You have to familiarize yourself with all this modern technology. I've already told you that one needs to move with the times. Take the example of your Master, see how he makes the most of progress!

The Medium: Babuji, I will never be able to match his skills in this area. I would rather stick to our way of communicating.

You have preconceived ideas about all these devices; all it takes is a minimum of knowledge and a bit of goodwill to adapt. You may have to go a little further to satisfy us.

You are very disturbed by this treatment and we will not add to it by having you envision other constraints; everything in its own time.

Get some rest and don't think that being a mystic means withdrawing from the world, and above all losing interest in it. That's not like you; you must remain open minded and curious about innovation, as you've always been, in spite of your weariness.

(Continued)

Yes, this message must be included in the collection.

Do remember, all of you remember, that everything we say has its importance, even if it doesn't seem obvious to you.

Babuji