Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, December 21, 1999 – 8:00 a.m.

Understand, all of you, that everything that happens around you is conducive to your evolution, if you know how to manage it well. Disappointments, frictions with others, their changing and sometimes unpleasant attitude, these represent a treasure for you. If you take things philosophically, you grow in detachment. We don't ask you for constant success; a few achievements from time to time, and you'll get into the habit of reacting differently, even if, deep down, your characters change little. We're suggesting a way of doing things that make you stronger. We have said it enough; we are not righters of wrongs. In all of life's disciplines, an instructor – a sports trainer, a fencing master or a mountain guide – must guide your steps, pointing out the mistakes to avoid for your training. They do all this to bring you to mastery of their art. The same applies to spirituality; we follow you all with the greatest attention and, above all, with love.
