The Medium: Babuji, I am waiting for one thing only: to rejoin you.

That will happen in due time. To be in surrender is also, for you, to leave this idea aside for the moment.

'Here and now' must be your credo. You are doing what you have always asked for: serving.

Be reasonable for a little while longer. You will not rest on your laurels after having left the Earth, so don't be obsessed with the idea of rejoining us.

Other means of serving will await you here. For a long time you have not believed in the beautiful images of the Christian paradise, where one reposes on a cloud while listening to angels playing music.

Your wish will be answered, you will have much to do, we will use your skills.

Therefore, accept your life as it is currently. Live each moment as a grace. The good and the not so good are in the drop of water, which can, depending on the case, refresh or flood. Your life is made of that. Make the most of the moments of joy – there are some – and endure your suffering, which also allows you moments of respite.

We know what you are going through, which gifts you receive! Think of this maxim that we recommend.

Generally, you put it into practice, but it sometimes happens that you forget.

Be an example for all those who undergo trials. Suffering, sooner or later, will visit them.

Faith is the real comfort. It is precious and it helps one bear the worst moments of life.

It is a true friend and never shies away.
