Saturday, April 28, 2001 – 8:00 a.m.

I venerated my Master Ramakrishna, as few disciples did. My love for him is eternal; these bonds are indefectible.

I often appeared to your Beloved Babuji, who also had this faculty of communicating with us when he was on this Earth.

All of us here are working for this Mission, which you love and support. This path is a simple and efficient way, given again to the people of this time to allow them access to higher levels. It is not demanding; it is entirely accessible to anyone who is willing to take the trouble for it.

Keep on focusing your life on love, as you have been doing for a long time. It is at the root of any process that is well understood, and yet love is not innate in everyone. One has to call it intensely and make it one's daily nourishment.

To quench one's thirst continuously at this source, with the practice of Sahaj Marg, brings convincing results. The opening of the heart calls forth grace. Love begets love. It is a magical circle that is established between the being and Divinity. Love magnifies everything.

You have the blessings of my Master, who touched your heart a long time ago, leaving a lasting impression.

Be blessed, my dear sister, continue to work for us in your own way which we do appreciate.

Vivekananda