Monday, July 26, 2004 - 10:00 AM

My son can be happy; it was a beautiful celebration, not only in India, but in all countries where our brothers henceforth are intent on this special day which they all consider as concerning them. Thus is how divine wills are: they are justified by what is good for man.

"Your Master is more than ever in complete osmosis with us; you can follow him with fervour, my child, and also surrender to his guidance in his explorations—as he calls them—of other levels of consciousness towards which he takes you with him. This work is not insignificant; it has also its raison d'être, which cannot be revealed through a mere reading. Their full meaning will be revealed to sensitive souls; as in any thing, time will do its work. Our Mission is advancing step by step at the pace of life in this world, as wanted by the higher powers; this world having also on the occasion benefited from special blessings. This year, we have insisted much on the issue; it is close to our heart, for many reasons.

"Life continues, expressing its rights and advancing, in spite of appearances, in the quest for perfection. This aspiration manifests itself in all the aspects of creation; the creative divine powers being perfect, it makes sense that things should be like that. Our way is also acting in this direction, our work completely subscribed to it; we exist only for that. The divine service is not exacting, it is the most beautiful reward offered to the creature worthy to act and love. To serve the Mission is an unparalleled title [of nobility] in this world; it is a rare blessing. May our brothers be convinced of that!"

Babuji