These messages are imperceptibly evolving in terms of their contents. Their comments are different. They try to make a breach in the conventional speech, which our aspirants are used to. To advance is also to open one's mind to the reality of a particular time; a backward-looking attitude would generate stagnation in relation to the foreseen evolution within the framework of the new era.

"This pivotal period of history makes it possible to seize opportunities being offered to humans, especially with a view to conquering the Spirit with the current and underlying openness which expects only to blossom in a reasonable context complying with the eternal truths. To guide our brothers and to enlighten them, as far as possible, represents the challenge that our Mission has set itself.

"Great changes in the history of the world resulted in the emergence of new teachings in relation to the vibratory amplitude of the moment. Evolution on Earth took place by degrees. Very strict principles are the cause of all changes, and today's man, in spite of knowledge acquired over the centuries, cannot understand it.

"Humans are both avid for discoveries and innovations, and timorous before a reality concerning them that is likely to disturb a peace of mind they are attached to. Our way also will go with the current. How could it do otherwise? It will not change its fundamental elements. It will adapt to new times, as everybody will have to do. Refusing the obvious would not be in conformity with its spirit.

"May all our brothers open their minds when the time comes for the redemptive current of energy which they will benefit from within the framework of this change."
