Wednesday, February 23, 2000 - 10:00 AM

My son cogitates; this possibility of communication through you makes him think. M. is an element that can tip the balance. He is closer to him by his ethnic culture where the voice of the heart expresses itself more easily, without being called sickly sentimental, which would help you overcome your respective modesties.

"It is necessary to let him accustom himself to this idea and that you be in a better state of health to assume this situation. This is a resource that presents itself to him; let him decide.

"Don't get worried for M.; he is not at present in a dramatic situation. Have faith in divine providence. This boy's path is all set, with what life can include in terms of ups and downs.

"As far as you are concerned, my dear daughter, your heart becomes an 'inhabitable' place, it's up to you to draw consequential conclusions."

Babuji