

Friday, November 3, 2000 - 8:00 AM

Sahaj Marg won't save the world, but it will make its own contribution that will be a significant one. It is currently a limited movement. Others began in such small proportions and they have dominated the world, to each time according to what is convenient to it.

"Human beings change, minds open up to knowledge. Taboos maintained by religions are being ended. The beginning of this century is a transitional period; a new era begins, fraught with contradictions and violence. No substantial change occurs without the latter. It seems that these are the rules established here below.

"As far as you are concerned, it is up to you to be a living example of what well-led spiritual conduct can provide. Sahaj Marg transforms human beings very profoundly and nearly without their knowing.

"Do they really realize this? It seems not. They would need to come backwards suddenly and compare. They can't do it; what they are currently living has become a second nature, and in this context, that is not very easy to do. But that is the fact of the matter, positive and definite."

Babuji