Although he hasn't asked for it, my son hopes to hear from us.

"Some new projects are going to keep him spellbound—he the builder, who excels in this kind of spiritual enterprise. World businesses that lead to a larger opening-up of the Mission restore his energy. His business sense finds its full flowering in these actions.

"While serving, he manifests his love for us. His main concern is to satisfy us. Can we have a better son? We admire his tenacity and the fact that he can pursue his action simultaneously at both the material and the spiritual levels.

"We will not dwell on that any more. We accompany him on his long way. He knows that. While sowing the best seeds, he leaves behind him a big and beautiful crop in gestation. Though he may not personally be present at the harvesting here below, the result will go beyond his expectations."
