To my son,

"Difficulties will arise from all sides. In France, spirits become heated and are focused on all spiritual movements they don't know. A new situation is taking place and it is likely to go on.

"The French people will wake up one day, wearied of being manipulated, and frustrated in many aspects of their life. What is sown in a fertile soil cannot be lost. Times that will be more favourable will come and the Mission in France will blossom again in this country when it has found its right place in it.

"These campaigns of calumny are fomented by very powerful dark forces acting in the darkness, in this country as well as everywhere in this world; this country being however their chosen territory. It will be necessary to show a great deal of patience and to wait for more favourable days. Real faith cannot be lost. It is strengthened in the silence of the hearts and comes to light in due time.

"This movement belongs to life cycles. It must be considered as it is and should not weaken that which commenced well in this country, with so much enthusiasm, and was a sign of the real need for a spirituality divested of superfluities.

"It will lose nothing by waiting for the right moment before eventually expressing itself freely."
