Aren't our contacts enough to satisfy you? You know that currently my son cannot go further concerning these messages. Let time pass, it is our ally. You communicate at subtle levels, and that should be enough to satisfy you, since you do not have the possibility to be physically close to him. Your contacts are very well designed and will still be refined, by divine grace. They will surprise more than a few, but today's human being is at the beginning of his discoveries in this area. He will keep on being surprised and discovering the parallel worlds which surround him, and which his unrefined senses cannot be in contact with. This time will come as we already told you: the man of tomorrow will become receptive to their wavelength and he will be captivated by the reality which, little by little, will appear to him, by opening up to the knowledge of these phenomena.

"Today's world has a passion for current technology, which man is exploring: it is only a gadget, compared to the amazing and personal possibilities that the human being unknowingly possesses. When the time comes, the level of evolution of humanity will inform him on these infinite resources, which will be accessible to him. What we propose to them with these messages only constitute the first steps of such communications, which will prevail. Little man must grow, he cannot remain eternally confined in ignorance; we are working toward that."
