Saturday, April 19, 2003 - 9:00 AM

Imagine how wonderful that day of grace was to my heart: going to rejoin my very much Revered Master Lalaji. May you receive in your heart for a while a hundredth of the happiness I felt for the occasion. It was the moment of sharing a very great joy. As my bonds to this world were broken, another epic could then begin, and it is still going on by divine will.

"My child, cultivate in yourself the love for your Master; this bond is unique. It goes very far beyond the limits of this world and it remains recorded in the memory of time. Try to maintain in yourself, throughout the day, this state of grace and lightness, which suits your loving heart so well.

"On this day, my presence will particularly be light too with my very dear son. These days of remembrance are invaluable in our hearts, bound by these waves of love, which keep on lifting them up. All is well like that. Only love, this unparalleled engine, can build the best things existing in this world. Let us ensure that it is maintained in the hearts, thus representing points of light in the darkness which prevails too much here below.

"Let us wish that on this particular day, a burning fire be reactivated in the hearts which trust us, and which follow us on this way of liberation. May they be particularly enlightened and strengthened, and may our blessings comfort you all."

Babuji