Remain surrendered; you will be guided in due time about a possible change of residence.

Be more and more united to the heart of your Master who has taken such a big place in your life. Keep on serving us in your own way. That is how you express all your love and faith in our system. These messages are important. Our brothers will not always ignore them. Many of them will feed on them with delight. When the moment has come, they will give rise to a big event in our Mission. My son will be able to make appropriate choices. On this, as well as on everything, we have complete confidence in him.

"He is designing the broad outline of the plans of a large-scale edifice, corresponding to the Mission of tomorrow. He is striving to this end both at the spiritual and material levels, and his action will deeply mark the structure thereof. Being divinely inspired, he is preparing the resulting productive harvest. As a visionary, he knows how to make required decisions. That is how a high level Master must act, without dwelling on the human, and hence limited, reactions of those who surround him.

"We are by his side, as always. His moments of despondency do not last. The burning flame inside him propels him to levels where we can surround him with all our tenderness, and particularly such a tenderness that a Master can have for his chosen and very much loved son. He has our very particular blessings on this day when we wished to communicate with him personally."
