Tuesday, May 13, 2003 - 9:30 AM

It is good for us to see, thanks to this means, that these few lines that we inspire in you reach my son everyday. It is an additional bond that links our hearts and our thought. Thus we can surround this beloved son in many ways.

"He is confronted with many problems inherent in this world where our Mission is developing, and he is facing up to things in a masterly fashion, one can say! His responsibility is heavy upon him, despite all the help that we try to give him. He belongs to the race of the greats. He is strong and does not let things get him down easily. Even if sometimes he is weighed down by the burden, he always manages to stand up with panache. We admire him and it is not just about encouraging him with nice words. He will be able to understand, through these lines, all that his action actually inspires in us.

"A chosen son receives all the graces. He deserves it, oh so much! Our generous impetus and profound gratitude surround him, and are worth mentioning when our hearts are overflowing with them.

"This Mission is heavy to carry. It must be set up so that it may find its marks in many countries with different cultures, as well as a solid base, which will be required by its future scale. In the future it will expand by itself, carried by the faith of our brothers, which also will keep on growing. We are happy, once more, to be able to come back to these topics frequently touched on, but which are very important to us.

"May the glory of my son constantly grow in this world and in the other."

Babuji