Can't you disregard the surrounding noise and manage to receive our voices? Receive them through your heart, as usual, and the rest will not have importance.

"You know that my son reads your notes every day, which commits you a little more to this work. He pays attention to everything, as you can see. He will be given soon the answers to his questions concerning the new [lease of] life. We are full of admiration for what he is doing; he still manages to amaze us, after all this time. This long tour is a turning point for our Mission; it will have to adapt to future events and to be built, come hell or high water.

"Humans are more fragile than they appear to be. They will nonetheless adapt to all the situations. They will have to face great difficulties for which they are not prepared. What makes their present-day life will not exist tomorrow; like their distant ancestors, they will have to conform to a new way of life without any facilities.

"Only the spiritual aspect of life on Earth is important for the regeneration of humanity. It will rise from the ashes and will be rebuilt on new bases more widely open to divine reality. All misconceptions, which have been spread for centuries, will be swept away, and replaced by a truth that will amaze them. Man will not indefinitely be kept in the dark, where he is standing now. His blinkers are huge and his views are commensurate with them. He has to learn and discover everything about his own reality. This time will come; the movement is in the making and will not stop."
