Grow within yourself this rare flower that is love, we will never stop speaking about it like that. Love is worth all speeches, all sacrifices. It is rare and invaluable when it rises towards the Divine. This love passing through the heart of a high level Master is very important.

'He is the perfect target, to channel it and redistribute it. The functions of a living Master go well beyond his perceptions; certain aspects escape him as they surpass what can be imagined. Each one of our brothers must experience love, in its rarest and most subtle essence. He must cultivate it, reinforce it and give it a special place in the heart of his practice, which would remain incomplete and would lose its effectiveness without this research. We have often insisted on this fact in our books and of course in these messages where we come back repeatedly to this so important aspect of the sadhana.

'The aspirant's heart must make its own discoveries and conquer this territory appearing before him, completely pure. This kind of love must be harnessed and fed with nobler thoughts. This way is difficult to follow; excelling in it is the supreme reward. A loving heart is a happy heart: all shores are accessible to him. A true spiritual process is made of work on oneself, rigour and discovery of the priceless treasure that is love, in its nobler expression, capable of opening the most secret and seemingly impassable doors. May all our brothers be aware of this aspect of their personal research."
