Keep aloof from the Earth where your steps are painful, and come and find us in this usual contact, which leaves in you a delicate flavour. You know how very short the spell on Earth is, compared to eternity. Don't worry about the next steps of your stay in this world, it will quickly be forgotten when you have left it. Let yourself be carried away by the events, my child, and put up with what cannot be avoided. Your life already comprised painful phases, which developed you and opened your soul to transcendence.

"Nothing is useless here below; the most beautiful paths are the most difficult. You can not escape the rule and it is through acceptance, being offered to the divine love, that your destiny can be accomplished. All is counted, weighed shall we say; a complete surrender reduces the harshness of the path. Keep offering your heart to us unreservedly, thus all will be well.

"We accompany our brothers and sisters in their tribulations on this Earth, in their mistakes, their successes and especially in their victories over themselves. This struggle is permanent; man is constantly confronted with the two aspects characterizing this world: good and evil. He must make choices without losing his lucidity. What is his objective, the guiding line of his life, that is the issue; it is up to him to see where his priorities lie.

"Engaging in a spiritual process shows an aspiration to rise, to surpass oneself. Sometimes the best lets himself be involved in regrettable situations, which he suffers from and he will even suffer from them when he has sufficiently stood back to realize his mistakes. Some of our brothers let themselves go into acting against our Mission, harming it in various ways. They are to be pitied; their awakening will be rude, when their blinkers have been removed."
