Whispers from The Brighter World

Tuesday, January 13, 2004 - 10:00 AM

My dear daughter,

"Your life is not easy, and your perseverance in serving us is only more commendable. Faith guides you and love nourishes you; it is your first food and the driving force making you advance every day. "

"You are thinking of your Master, for whom fulfilling his mission is not easy. Many humans would feel overwhelmed by his responsibilities, but he is facing up to things courageously, driven by a deep conviction about the importance of his work (which he himself does not assess) and carried away by the force of a divine love. Great beings don't belong to themselves any more: they have gone, for a long time already, beyond such limitations subjecting them to their lesser 'self'. Their true nature is expressed in realms reserved to the Chosen ones. Our son is following in the footsteps of the greatest [ones], and we are delighted about that.

"May all our brothers, become well aware of the dimension of their living Master. It is a grace for them to approach him and to serve him.

"May they all be blessed."
