Sunday, January 25, 2004 - 10:00 AM

You see, you are not forgotten; a human love very strong and sincere remains precious in life. You are loved and so you will remain. What is noble and beautiful continues beyond this world: Francois' message shows it.

"My dear daughter, we understand you feel melancholic, but you must understand that your life is not in vain and your limitations do not prevent you from doing a good job: your Master proves it. The origin of these messages is a love affair.

"Co-opted to come toward us where your destiny was awaiting you, you started to follow a way without being convinced, until the day when the encounter occurred between your heart and mine. It is a beautiful story, which does not date from this life; it sets us back here in another context where my son is present, as he was in other affairs referring to past lives. Nothing happens by chance: beings meet again from life to life, while building up a joint destiny.

"Do not start doubting about what you are writing. You are incorrigible! We take advantage of the ambient peace giving to this contact a more familiar tone, to mention another aspect of our relation. You see in me an affectionate father, in these moments when you are beyond the Earth. My son and you finally met again to my greater joy.

"You know how much he is loved and which place is his in the circle of the Chosen ones. He is involved in this special moment when grace is bestowed on him in abundance. Remain joyful throughout the day, until your next rendezvous with whom you know. Soon, we will speak to him specially—though in fact, all these messages are intended for him."

Babuji