Whispers from The Brighter World

Emerging victorious from all struggles is redeeming; it is in that that it is wise to surpass oneself. As was said recently, the success is all the more beautiful. The way to it is long but so gratifying. We will keep using all the means capable of touching the heart of our aspirants and see to it that they are motivated. Time is short, this incarnation is determining for them; how will they use it? Will they be sufficiently motivated to meet the requirements of the final examination in terms of its rigour? We are providing them with the necessary means; it is up to them to use them.

"These messages will be a plus for those who will actually admit the underlying principle. After an initial phase of surprise, many will perceive in them the ring of truth capable of touching their heart: that is the objective. Everything is decided at that level, the wonder lies there: the secret door leading to a glorious eternity.

"The purpose of our comments is only that one: through simple words, sensitizing them on the essentials of a sadhana, [which is] intellectualized—inappropriately—by some people. Success in this area hinges on purity of heart and surrender, thus allowing true spiritual work. Multiple knowledge and information accumulated previously can hinder this work. Here, surrender must be considered in its true meaning: being neither occasional nor slowed down by an accumulation of erroneous principles. It must be a real inclination of heart to feel and receive what is essential in a true spiritual process. Pioneers in our Mission have gone a long way. Henceforth it is advisable to quicken the pace: the future will give it the means of going beyond.

"Let the divine will be done."
