Monday, August 30, 2004 - 10:00 AM

Your heart is imbibed permanently, don't you know it? Your Master is reassuring you enough on this point. He is guiding you towards mine, in view of an endless round where it is taking you along. This love is unfailing; it remains through the ages, being strengthened infinitely.

"Having reached that point in a spiritual process where the greatest wish is to be united completely with the divine powers, means that a great step has been taken. Life on Earth is going on; one has to attend to its daily obligations, but the heart cannot be restrained. It is free in terms of its impulses. Who could prevent it from that? Its life develops in parallel in secrecy, ensuring the durability of the being.

"Once this point of maturity has been acquired, the soul, completely surrendered to the Master, follows the way to rapture, asking for it constantly. Can you recognize yourself in this portrait, my child? Explore this inner richness further. It is unlimited. How can our brothers be convinced of the need for them to go further in this way of surrender and union with the heart of the being? There resides the unity with the Divine, the strength that propels them on to unsuspected heights. If this thirst for the Divine appears in them, they should not ignore it; this gift will not be made indefinitely, if they neglect it too much.

"Practice, in our way, encourages one to perceive such a message and to answer it as is proper. Our aspirants are advancing on this way; it is good to notice it. All are not equally motivated. Each one is advancing at his own pace; time is doing its work and will remedy these few gaps. The way is widening for all of them; they are following it under our constant blessings."

Babuji