My very dear son,

"Have no fear; wherever you would be in this human microcosm, your dimension exceeds very much the beings that surround you. These remarks will embarrass you and yet, on the occasion that worries you, your humility will not have to prevail in your attitude. You will be yourself quite simply; your capacities on all levels go well beyond the majority of those who express themselves in these forums.

Spare yourself, your health is precious, my son. It is closer to our heart than a speech. Nevertheless, if it is possible for you to make it, we will be by your side, and you will express yourself as well as you are used to. You are serving our Mission with great competence, including as a gifted speaker. Haven't you always been inspired? Beings like you have the appropriate resources. You have them all; never doubt it, until the end of your life. Your heart and your spirit are united in such situations making you give your best. Firstly, look after yourself and then you will be able to cope with your commitments.

"Be at peace, you are seeking here below, neither glory nor fortune. You are performing your mission: the one for which you came into this world, and you are carrying it out in a masterly way. What more can we tell you to reassure and strengthen you? A spiritual Master of your calibre does not have anything to fear about men's judgment; they, on the contrary, have to expect everything of you.

"We love you—don't you know it? Therefore in a way, this world is the decor in which you are doing what you have to, and you are doing it very well. With all our blessings,"
